Martha Stewart, look

onna Frederickson does it all. She cooks, creates, gardens, decorates, arranges flowers and has hundreds of ideas for parties, crafts and how to arrange furniture.

If Martha Stewart can do it, Donna can do it. She uses her skills to earn money, but it's easy to tell she loves what she's doing. She's even willing to share some ideas.

Frederickson's touch begins before you even step into her yard. At the bottom of the driveway a huge white lattice arbor stands over her driveway, creating a gateway to her gardens. At the top of the arbor is written, "Some people like to make a little garden to inspire faith, hope and kindness." In fact, Frederickson would like people to remember her as someone who brings beauty and happiness.

After meandering through her flowers, her front porch welcomes every visitor.

"I designed the front porch and my husband built it," she said. The front door is painted bright red to attract attention and to bring in positive energy. She uses some feng shul techniques, but doesn't go overboard with it unless that is her customer's choice.

"The red is eye-popping and I love it. It's a country red that is picked up in the flowers," she said.

seating at the side of her porch. "Half the people don't seem to make it into the house," she said,

"but I want my sons' friends to know they're welcome." Since most of her porch is covered, Frederickson said she can leave the cushions outside for the season, but the covers all come off and can be washed or dry-cleaned, she said.

The porch changes with the season and often has a scarecrow, bale of hay and cornstalks and pumpkins from her garden.

Start with fall decorations, add the Halloween and then change to a Thanksgiving theme. Christmas decorations on her porch vary from year to year, but she always has a theme. When she does Christmas decorating for customers she works with the idea they want but tends to shy away from real commercial decorations.

One year the family of one of her customers went to the Caribbean for the Christmas holidays, but the lady of the house didn't want them to miss all the traditions of Christmas. While they were gone, she hired Fredrickson to decorate the house, all the way down to the sugar cookies. Needless to say, the family was open-mouthed with surprise.

It must be love. The dancers who enter competitions have about seven dance classes a week and put everything they have into the hours of rehearsals in the dance studio at Antioch Dance Academy, at 77 McMillan Road. They all do it because they love to dance.

Seventy-four dancers from the Academy competed in the regional portion of the National competition last month in the Wisconsin Dells and brought home more than their share of gold and platinum awards. Amy Hunter of Antioch, who owns the academy, said she has nearly 300 students who range in age from 14 months to senior citizens.

Get a taste from the past at Blondies

Local shop serves old-fashioned treats

By Ginny Skweres Staff Reporter

"Blondies" is one of the newest establishments to open up in Antioch on Lake Street, not far up from the movie theater. It's a soda fountain just like they had in the "good old days." If you've been yearning for a real Green River, an ice cream soda or a banana split made with rich ice cream and real bananas, this is the place for you.

Sisters Lois Valle and Lynn Kucharz are Antioch residents now, but when they were growing up, they were 'summer people' in Antioch.

YTurner poised to resign from District 34

By Ginny Skweres Staff Reporter

District 34 School Board President Steve Turner, who has served for 12 years, is ready to step down as soon as teacher negotiations are completed. There are two years left of his four-year term.

"When I decided to run for Township Trustee, I told the board in January that I would resign if I won," Turner said.

When he won the township position in April he was ready to turn in his letter of resignation, but the other board members asked him to stay on until negotiations with the teachers were completed and he agreed.

Turner said the negotiations are ongoing but he thinks they are very close to an agreement.

The board gave an offer to the union and they will take it to their members," Tuner said. When an agreement is reached he will give the board an official letter of resignation, so he can focus on his township duties.

"I think there are a lot of new young people who would like to participate in the school board," Turner said.

ginnys@lakelandmedia.com

Their family spent a great deal of time near Lake Catherine.

"We used to ride our bikes uptown and go the movies and Reeves Drug store for a soda," Valle said. "One summer we came up and it was gone."

The two sisters put their heads together and decided to open the shop in February. By April they occupied the space and the two of them set to work. Aside from laying the floor, they did all the decorating themselves. The shop has a definite Coca-Cola theme with red and white walls and a wallpaper border that adds the perfect touch.

The walls are decorated with posters that speak well of the fifties. There are some classics including Jackie Gleason of the "The Honeymooners," and a print of Lucy selling 'vitameatavegamin' from the "I Love Lucy" show.

The "piece de la resistance' that will bring back even more nostalgia is expected soon. It will be a jukebox filled with oldies hits. Currently they have CD's playing songs from the past, and sitting in a booth, eating ice cream with plenty of whipped cream, and listening to the tunes is very relaxing.

However, they said most customers prefer to sit at the counter on like to watch the creation of something special.

For those who can't resist a challenge, "Blondies" provides one with their "Beltbuster" which includes three scoops of ice cream, three toppings and then every space is filled they add sprinkles, cherries and p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights.

Lois Valle and Lynn Kucharz, owners of "Blondles," are ready to bring back the taste of old-fashloned ice cream sodas and banana splits. There concoctions are just like they used to taste and they don't scrimp on the whipped cream. Their new shop opened on Lake Street recently, and their scoops are ready.

nuts, and serve it with six vanilla wafers. For those who can actually finish it, their picture is taken and posted on the wall. The youngest person to eat every bite is a ten-yearold and the oldest is 66.

Some have done it more than once," Kucharz said. "I asked why he kept ordering it and he said 'Where else can you get this much ice cream for this price?" A Beltbuster costs $4.99 and they throw in a glass of water for free.

They also enjoy doing special orders. "If we have the ingredients, we'll do it," Kucharz said. One man wanted brownie ala mode." The creations includes a Brownie topped with ice cream with fudge sauce, hot caramel sauce and whipped cream all over.

"He loved it and ate every bite," she said.

There is also a treat for children from a bygone era, the candy count-Necco wafers, Mary Janes, a candy necklace, Pixie Stix and Bulls Eyes, among others.

They offer 11 flavors of ice cream on a rotating basis of 30 flavors.

They are open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Mondays through with whipped cream. On top of that Thursdays and stay open until 11

The are open from 2 to 10 p.m. on Sundays. They are also willing to host birthday parties or other special events.

The sisters' backgrounds prepared them well for this business. They have always loved ice cream and enjoy people.

"It's so nice to meet people. There are very nice people here and when we have the time we get to talk and that's a perk," Kucharz said.

"It's fun. If this were a bar, it would be like "Cheers," Valle said. "Most of our clientele are families, but we've had some teenagers and I'm impressed with how polite they

Fourth of July celebration was special

The two-hour parade went off without a hitch and everyone had a good time until the rain began. A young Marine in uniform sat with his family near Mayor Dorothy Larson. She was extremely impressed by him and later thanked him for his service to the country.

When the Marine Corp League, Detachment 801 unit came by, he walked to the curb and stood at attention, ram-rod straight, Larson said. He did the same when a group singing patriotic songs and carrying flags went by. Other people noticed his patriotism too because a number of them asked if they could take a picture with him.

The Marine Corp League, Lake County Detachment 801, carried the color guard in the parade appreciated the response by the residents. In a note to the mayor, Marty Smith III Americanism Chairman of the Marine Corps League said, "... it was something very special and hit the hearts of everyone one of us Marine Corps Leaguer's that were in the parade or their watching. Please give a special thanks to the People of Antioch whom showed with their hearts a gratitude that none of us have seen before. Semper Fi & God Bless america.

The fireworks and the rest of the celebration was continued until Monday evening, which seemed to draw a larger crowd than usual, according to Mayor Larson.

"They were the best display I've ever seen," she said. "People were cheering and hollering up and down the street. Larson said. credit for the spectacular display goes to Lee Shannon, director of emergency management for the village.

One of Frederickson's suggestions is to get rid of clutter and organize things. "Live in the present, not the past," she said.

"Don't be afraid of color, because paint is the fastest decorating tool. Use it on walls, furniture, floors or whatever. It's so inexpensive," she said. Colors can change the feel of a room. For total relaxation she suggests blues and greens. "Green is easy to decorate with because everything in nature gees with it."

Red, orange and yellow are more energizing colors and tend to make people hungry. Restaurants frequently use those colors in their decorating, she said.

Frederickson enjoys a variety of table settings

"I love it and Amy has the best teachers around," Danielle said. "I'll probably dance until I'm an old lady."

Erica Latakas, 11, of Antioch has taken lessons for six years and has classes throughout the school year as well as in the summer, and loves the competitions.

"It's so much fun and you do different things every year so you just get better and better," Erica said.

Alicia Fikejs, 12, of Kenosha, said she likes dancing and it's fun.

"Competitions are really fun because you get to meet new people," she said. Some of those people the girls see again and again at the various competitions.

The teachers are just as enthusiastic as the students. "We all love it here. It's like a family and a lot of fun," teacher Kim Balleza said.

If the rehearsals aren't enough to show their devotion to the art, Hunter also requires the dancers to give up drinking any soda for two weeks before the competition. "Most of them did it," Hunter said. "They have more stamina and are more hydrated."

Hunter spoke of one young dancer who finished her last competitive dance whose mother was waiting in the wings with a cold can of pop. Before enjoying the forbidden treat, she checked with Hunter that it was OK. Since her last performance was finished, Hunter gave her thumbs up.

The dancers aren't the only ones who deserve kudos. A great many parents and sib-

One problem Hunter faces is getting good dance teachers this far out from Chicago. She has solved this in two ways. She has found that teachers might not come out to teach regular classes, but they are willing to come out to hold a workshop on a specific skill or tech-

The classes Hunter offers include ballet, jazz, tap, poms, aerobics and Pilates. In order to keep everything running smoothly, Hunter relies on office manager Dawn Latakas, who has been with her since day one, Hunter said.

As for the most recent competition, the girls won platinum awards for their performances of "Let's Dance," "Lose My Breath," "We Will Rock You," "Redneck Woman," "Electro Funk," "Go Light Your World," "Catwoman," "Never Been," and "I Like That."

They also won 20 gold awards. Each and every dancer worked and worked for those awards and they deserve praise for their dancing abilities and their perseverance. More information is available by calling 847-395-0022.

Fostiak thanked for leadership at Gavin

By Steve Peterson

Staff Reporter

Even up to the eleventh hour of her contract with Gavin School District 37, Marge Fostiak, superintendent, was working on behalf of the school district, parents and stu-

Fostiak, of Johnsburg, was honored with a plaque at an emotional school board meeting. Her final official day was July 1, before leaving to become superintendent at Byron schools. Gavin and CURB (Citizens United for a Responsible Board) were working on a tentative agreement to release $5 million in state approved funding.

Connie Thorsen, school board member and president when Fostiak was hired in 2002, praised her for her efforts in trying times.

"When we hired you, we asked you to set up a collaborative working atmosphere, be visible in the community and improve curriculum and instruction for the students and keep the district financially stable. Two months in, we found out that we were broke. But because of you, we have district leadership teams, your first budget was in the black and we were off the financial watch list, and we now have a curriculum cycle for grade kindergarten through eight. It has been a struggle, moving kids and schools, but you have done a wonderful job, getting not one, but two pieces of state legislation passed, a $5 million grant and a $2 million grant for relocation," Thorsen said.

"It has been a wonderful three years, working with everyone. There are so many people to thank, I'll miss all of you," Fostiak said.

Fostiak was selected to replace J. Michael Maloney, and came to Gavin from Elgin schools.

School Board President Barb Mende said that the board was "in final negotiations" with Mundelein District 75 Superintendent Ray Partridge about a contract. The matter was delayed at the June 28 school board meeting.

The school board also has to hire two new principals for the 2005-06 school year.

Anti-gang funding may stem drug activity

By Kyle Schmitt

Staff Reporter

Increased funding for anti-gang initiatives may help Lake County law enforcement officials combat a rise in gang-related drug activity that has occurred during the past year.

While the Lake County Metropolitan Enforcement Group (LCMEG) now concentrates much of its efforts on Waukegan and the Round Lake-area, all local communities may benefit from $100 million in new funding recently approved by the U.S. House of Representatives to help drug gangs linked to international cartels.

Law enforcement officials discussed how to fight this threat at a June 20 anti-gang briefing hosted by U.S. Rep Mark Kirk (R - Highland Park), a member of the House Appropriations Justice subcommit-tee that first approved a new $60 million local law enforcement grant program to support police gangfighting efforts.

Officers have witnessed recent increases in cocaine and marijuana activity and arrests, said LCMEG director Mark Rasmussen.

"I think a lot more gangs are utilizing the drug trade to lund their other activities," Rasmussen said. "I think we're seeing more of an influx of a variety of gangs coming into the area, and that's why it's increasing."

Ecstasy use has surged and dropped, Rasmussen said, and the county is "extremely fortunate" that law enforcement has not seen any methamphetamine labs. Heroin use has increased, though Rasmussen said its users tend to merely take the drug rather than sell it as they would marijuana and cocaine to fund their habit.

To combat the problem, LCMEG officers work with the Lake County Sheriff's Office to look for gang members with outstanding warrants, serve arrest and search warrants and perform street interventions to find out what congregating gang members are doing.

Group personnel also use a Special Ops Unit to conduct traffic stops on drivers committing violations, and asking questions to those they recognize as gang members for information purposes. We've had a lot of success with those type of operations," Rasmussen said.

Neighborhood Waukegan Enforcement Team members expect to receive a $100,000 grant, which Gang Unit Sergeant Domenic Cappelluti said would be allocated to fund improved equipment, gang intelligence and additional NET offi-

Some gangs now strive exclusively to make money from dealing drugs rather than instigate violence and engage in gamesmanship with their rivals, Cappelluti said.

Some family members involved in rival gangs can sit at the same dinner table due to their desire to make

County Lake Health Department officials are spreading the word about the best way to ; prevent West Nile Encephalitis now that a positive test has been discovered.

A mosquito pool collected at the Old School Forest Preserve near Libertyville has tested positive or West Nile Virus, county health officials said. Last year, 50 mosquito pools and five dead birds tested positive for the virus. No human cases were reported.

"What continues to be important is for residents to actively prevent breeding in their backyards, to protect themselves against mosquito bites, and to report dead birds and stagnant water to the Health Department," said Dale Galassie, the Health Department's executive director.

The Health Department maintains a West Nile virus hotline for county residents to report dead birds, areas of stagnant water (which are conducive to mosquito breeding), or to obtain more information on the signs and symptoms of West Nile encephalitis. The West Nile hotline number is: 847-377-8300.

A Lake County Health Department official described how the pool test was determined to be positive for West Nile virus on July 1. The original tests at the Forest Preserve site were taken June 21.

"The vex test came back negative initially, but we sent it to the lab for more intensive, accurate results and it came back positive," said Mike Adam, biologist with Lake County Health Department.

Adam said those municipalities and townships are doing a good job in monitoring catch basins.

Kim Kiesgen, highway commissioner for Grant Township in western Lake County, said Clarke Mosquito Control has trained two

CLC appoints Pollard as VP

The College of Lake County board of trustees approved the appointment of DeRionne Pollard of Lindenhurst as vice president for educational affairs, after a nationwide search.

Pollard replaces Carole Bulakowski, who retired at the end of June after having served as interim vice president for educational affairs since July 1, 2004.

Pollard has served as assistant vice president for educational affairs at CLC since January 2002. She began working at the college in 1995 as an English instructor, a position she held for five years. Following that, Pollard served as acting dean of the Communication Arts, Humanities and Fine Arts division for the fall semester 2000 and as instructional developer from January to December 2001. Dr. Pollard earned her B.A. and M.A. degrees from Iowa State University in Ames, Iowa, and her Ph.D. in educational leadership from Loyola University in Chicago.

Along with Pollard's appointment, the board also approved two-year contracts for James Rock, vice president for administrative affairs, at a base salary of $124,330, and Darl Drummond, vice president for student development, at a base salary of $124,454. Additionally, the board approved a two-year contract for Pollard at a base salary of $115,000.

Budget on display

CLC's board also approved placing its tentative budget for Fiscal Year 2006 on public display beginning at 10 a.m. on July 11 and scheduled a public hearing on the budget for 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 23. The budget, which covers the period from July 1, 2005, to June 30, 2006, estimates revenues of $69.06 million and expenditures of $68.79 million. The tentative budget will be available for public inspection in the business office on the Grayslake campus.

Retirements, personnel actions

The board passed resolutions honoring outgoing President Gretchen J. Naff, who retired at the end of June as well as retirees Dr. Carole Bulakowski (interim vice president for educational affairs), Rodney Cummins (automotive technology instructor), Rita Eastburg (English instructor), Anthony Gundrum (electronics technology instructor), Anne Loeb (chemistry instructor), Noel Stirrat (geography instructor) and Michael Watters (dean, Engineering, Math and Physical Sciences Division).

Four new faculty members were appointed for the fall semester. Those appointed are Ty Liles of San Diego, a geography instructor; Amy Morton-Miller, of Island Lake, a nursing instructor; Sue Nierstheimer, of Vernon Hills, a dental hygiene instructor and Michelle Proctor of Cary, a elementary education instructor.

The board also appointed Sylvia Pullins of Hainesville as director of career and placement services and approved retiring nursing instructor Tana Durnbaugh for professor emeritus status.

Summer enrollment at all-time high

In the president's report, Naff announced that the 10th-day enrollment for the summer session reached an all-time high of 9,428 students, a five percent increase over last summer. The full-time equivalents also set a record with an eight percent increase over last year.

Countywide trail completion getting closer

The Lake County Forest Preserve Board of Commissioners moved one step closer to completing the Des Plaines River Trail with approval of an intergovernmental land trade at their June 17 meeting. A land exchange with the Village of Lincolnshire will provide one of three small parcels still needed to complete the final mile of the 33-mile pathway.

Under the terms of the agreement, the Lake County Forest Preserves will receive a quarter-mile-long trail easement along the west side of the river just south of Riverside Road near the Ryerson Conservation Area. In return, the Village of Lincolnshire will receive two easements from the Forest Preserves: a right-of-way for a water main and a trail easement to improve access from the village's bicycle pathway to the Des Plaines River Trail and connecting regional trails. Forest Preserve officials have been negotiating the land trade for more than two years. The agreement is an even swap, with no land cost to either government agency.

Once the easement is in place, just two small parcels remain to complete the pathway. Both properties are privately owned. Negotiations are underway for their acquisition.

Spanning nearly the entire length of Lake County, the Des Plaines River Trail connects ten Forest Preserves with local parks and communities as it winds through the nearly 8,000-acre Greenway from just south of the Illinois-Wisconsin border southward.

At this time, 31 miles of the trail are open to the public for biking, fishing, hiking, horseback riding and other outdoor recreation activities. The trail begins at Russell Road in Wadsworth and follows the river south to West Riverside Drive in Lincolnshire. There, a one-mile gap spans from West Riverside Drive to Estonian Lane, where a short section of trail continues to Lake Cook Road where it connects to Cook County Forest Preserve trails. Bridges and underpasses along the trail's route make it possible to travel nearly the entire distance without crossing any major roads.

Tool developing for precise fees ntil now, assessing builders and developers with the cost to public education of residential growth—"the school impact"—fee has been a "catch as catch can" endeavor. The construction industry participates in half-hearted fashion, while educators and community leaders do their best to breach the gap between costs to the public incurred and when real estate tax comes on line.

In reality, the assessment of impact fees has been a process of negotiation where representatives of the public approach the establishment of fees on a "best guess" basis and developers drag their feet to minimize the impact on profits.

That could change as a small elementary district, reeling from the adverse effects to education funding of an onslaught of rooftops from a neighboring community, attempts to apply science to an imperfect process. Officials of Big Hollow School located in a once country area of Fox Lake and Ingleside are pushing to involve other agencies in the formation of a precise model that can be applied to obtaining a more accurate picture of development costs. (See letter on page C5)

More than figuring out how many more classrooms will be needed, Big Hollow Supt. Ron Pazanin said the goal is to determine actual costs of educating a child. The Big Hollow model will factor in tax rates, tuition, land costs, state aid, projected increases in operational costs and home market values.

Looking at impact fees from a broader viewpoint drives home the point that most districts have been woefully short in the agreed upon payments required of developers.

Statutes require that developers provide land or cash or a combination of the two. Typically, deals are struck between the developer and the municipal authority and School officials, who represent the public and taxpayers, areon the outside looking in.

With a precise impact fee model, the disparity or short-changing of the local school district, is less likely to happen. The development of an exacting model will provide a tool that is badly needed. The impact fee model is long due and should be embraced as soon as possible.

'Speech parks' finding a home here may come a time when it will be commonplace to find in every community a little public place where it is legal to express private sentiment. The day of battling over the display of crèches, menorahs, crosses, anti-war, pro-war beliefs in public places may be part of the past.

The door has been opened in two North Shore communities for public "speech parks" as provided as part of the municipality's sign ordinance. Posting of political or religious messages will be legal.

Highland Park council members voted unanimously to create the public display place with a provision that obscenities, candidate signs and commercial advertising not be allowed. Nearby Northbrook has created a public display area without encountering any problems.

The new "speech park" in Highland Park will not be without strings. Two displays at a time will be allowed for 30 days. Permits will be required. And, of course, there will be a fee. In the case of Highland Park, the price of sounding off is $60.

The public park for exercising speech freedom amounts to a safety valve. Fervent thoughts can be expressed in public without public reprisal. Given the present political climate and the fact that every municipality is seeking new sources of revenue, more speech parks can be predicted as being part of the future.

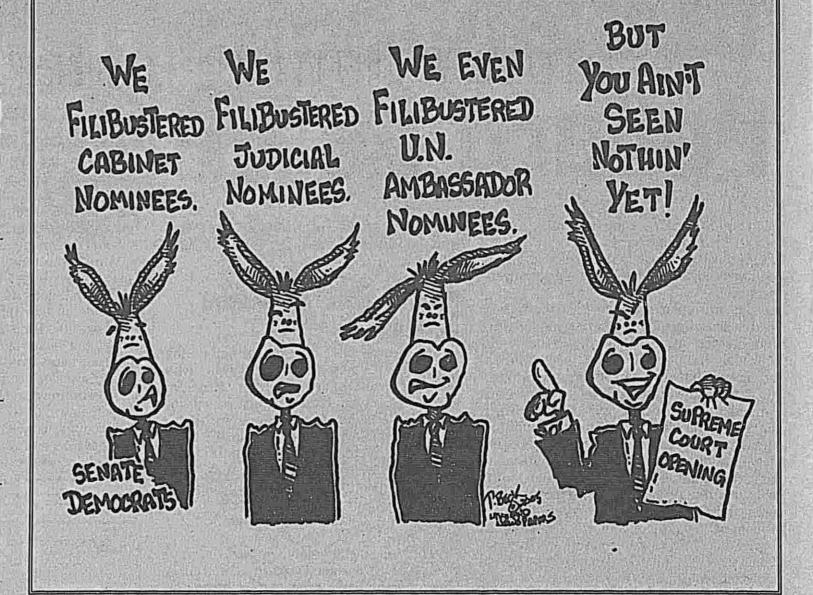

Holiday triggers massive arrests

Tith an estimated 4.7 millions drivers on Midwestern highways over the long July 4 weekend, chances were slight that you were stopped at one of the 800 roadblocks established by police in what was called the largest drunken-driving crackdown in Illinois history.

But if you were, would you have been able to pass a field sobriety test? Law enforcement officers had statistics on their side to snare a large proportion of DUI violators because they know alcohol is related to a majority of holiday celebrations. July 4 is considered the most dangerous holiday.

This year the Illinois Dept. of Transportation received $700,000 in federal funds to supplement state and local monies expended for the massive crackdown. Results of the holiday DUI initiative aren't in yet, but police officials are confident that new records in arrests will be made.

Gov. Rod Blagojovich has a goal of reducing Illinois traffic deaths to 1,000 by 2008. That means that the death rate will have to be notched down by approximately 150 per year, a pretty hefty assignment. But the holiday road-blocks are big steps in helping reduce carnage on the highways.

Suburbs becoming direct entry points

hicago officials are loath that the big city isn't the "landing spot" or point of entry it once was for immigrants. Newcomers from other lands now are coming in increasing numbers directly to new homes in Lake County and other outlying suburbs in the metropolitan area.

All nationalities are finding new lives in Lake County. The lure is jobs and a place to live. An interesting way to gauge the growth of newcomers is to identify the number of new churches serving immigrant families that are being formed

Chicago is enjoying significant new home construction for singles, professional couples and emptynesters, but not in sufficient numbers to stem a population decline.

In numbers, Hispanics lead the total of immigrants going straight to the suburbs, according to demographers. In Lake County, Waukegan, the Round Lake area and Mundelein-Diamond Lake continue to be hotbeds of Hispanic growth. But other ethnic groups, particularly Asians, are establishing rapidly in all parts of the county.

What is interesting about population changes is the "sub metro" area arising in the vicinity of Aurora, Naperville and Joliet. Latest figures show Joliet with the fastest growth with a hefty 4,4 per cent growth. In contrast, Waukegan showed a one per cent increase to 91,602 in population as compared to a decrease in Chicago.

Kenneth Johnson, a Loyola University demographer, confirmed that the suburbs are outpacing Chicago in population growth.

Totally unexpected

What started out as a birthday celebration for the 100th year of Lakeland Media's Grayslake Times turned into a bouquet tossing event. recognizing your reporter's nearly 50 years as a Lake County editor. Thanks for all the kind words. The plaudits were totally unexpected. As presenters stepped up to the microphone, I suddenly realized they were talking about me. My Democratic grandfather would have been pleased to hear words of praise coming from two of Illinois' leading Democrats, House Speaker Mike Madigan and Senate President Emil Jones. My Republican grandfather undoubtedly would have brought me back to earth in a hurry with a question along the lines of "What in the world did you do to get those guys to say nice things about you?" Coming from a bi-partisan family background helped immeasurably in handling the editor's duties. Even at an early age, they taught me there's always two sides to a political story.

Hobbs leaving

Another top female officer is leaving Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Capt. Kathryn M. Hobbs will be relieved by Capt. Richard J. Postera in a change of command ceremony Friday, August 12, at 'Ross Field. Capt. Hobbs was noted for her passion in interesting young people in a military career. She began her service as an enlisted person. Her many friends in Lake County where thrilled to see Adm. Ann Rondeau, former Great Lakes commander, nominated for a second star recently. When they were stationed together, Adm. Rondeau and Capt. Hobbs formed a formidable team.

Coyote evidence

Residents of Oaks In the Hollow were heart-broken to find the mutilated carcass of a three-legged deer that had become a pet in the Fox Lake area subdivison since suffering injury several years ago. The cloud over summer fun in the community was attributed to a band of coyotes that roam the hilly area off Rte. 12.

Getting grants

Lake County communities cashed in to the tune of $21,745 in the last tri-annual awards made by the Illinois Arts Council. Most of the grants were to pay for a performance. The largest one was $4,800 to Highland Park High School for a performance by the Chicago Symphony Singers. Ragdale Foundation of Lake Forest was awarded $3,960 for youth employment at the arts school.

Back to school

Moore's previous assignment was chief of the mission at Namibia in Africa. His mother is Libertyville Township Supervisor Betty-Ann Moore. At Stanford Moore will concentrate on Russian studies.

One man's family

Grandson John extended the Little League season again this year by winning a spot on the all-star traveling team. 'Money flowing'under new mayor wo members of the Antioch village council minority are having a difficult time getting used to the new freewheeling spending policies of Mayor Dorothy Larson's administration.

"The money is flowing; it's really flowing," asserted veteran Trustee Larry Hanson, who opposed Larson's election last April.

Former Mayor Taso Maravellas inherited a scandal when elected to office in 2001 and followed tight-fisted spending policies to realign fiscal stability.

Under Maravelas, Trustee Bob Caulfield as chairman of the finance committee was a major force for fiscal integrity. Despite being regarded the most experienced financial manager on the council, Caulfield was appointed to committees involving public safety, parks, licenses and oversight of delinquent escrow accounts.

At this time, Caulfield is the only trustee on a new committee negotiating police pay.

Costco on the run

Lake Forest council members took little time dispatching big box Costco which sought permission to erect a store. Now Costco Wholesale Corp. is back seeking permission to erect a warehouse facility in the Conway Farms industrial area. Costco opponents were quick to point out that Costco gasoline pumps would be injurious to the health of Chicago Bears football players who have a practice complex nearby. Prediction: Doesn't look good for Costco in Lake Forest.

Steering clear

It didn't take long for retired Mundelein Grade School Supt. Ray Partridge, 59, to distance himself from the mess at Gavin Elementary District in west Lake County. Gavin officials sought a commitment from . Partridge for one year only. Now newly elected board of education members hope to land one of the many former school chiefs in Lake County who are permitted to work 100 days under the terms of their pensions.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Small school short-changed on impact fees

he Round Lake Village Board recently took a regrettable step backward when it approved impact fees for the Ryland Homes Emerald Bay project located at Wilson Road and Route 120. The development will add more than 220 townhouse units to the Big Hollow School District, yet the development will be required to pay impact fees of only $720 for each 2-bedroom unit and $900 for each three-bedroom unit. Big Hollow had asked for impact fees of $8,157 per unit, an amount received by Fremont School District 79 in an agreement approved by the Lakewood Grove developers and the Round take Village Board.

In a June 23 Daily Herald news article Round Lake Mayor Bill Gentes is quoted as saying "We had given them (Big Hollow School District) numbers and heard nothing from them." This is totally inaccurate.

First, Big Hollow never received any impact fee amount from Round Lake concerning the Emerald Bay project. In fact, the last time Round Lake gave Big Hollow any impact fee amount it concerned the 1997 Valley Lakes development agreement. At that time impact fee amounts for townhouses were $712 for two-bedroom units and $1,246 for three-bedroom units.

Second, it was particularly disheartening to read that Mayor Gentes was not aware that Big-Hollow has been an active participant for the past eight months regarding the Emerald Bay development. I personally attended and spoke at meetings of the Round Lake Planning Commission/Zoning Board of Appeals on Oct. 26, Nov. 12 and Dec. 14, 2004. Mayor Gentes received a letter from me dated May 6, 2005 requesting a meeting about impact and transition fees. I also spoke to the Round Lake Village Board at its meeting on May 16, On Nov. 12, 1 met with a Ryland Homes representative and on May 26: 1 attended a meeting with the Mayor, a village attorney, a village administrator, a Ryland Homes representative and the Grant High School Superintendent to discuss impact fees for the Emerald Bay project.

I received a letter, dated June 8, from the Ryland Homes representative proposing impact fees of $600 for two-bedroom townhouse units and $750 for three-bedroom townhouse units. These figures were based on the Madrona Village development impact fees (but omitted the "added value" of the 15 acres the Madrona Village developer gave the Grayslake School District). At the June 13 Big Hollow School board meeting the board approved a resolution requesting impact fees equal to what the Village of Round Lake gave the Fremont School District. The school board resolution was hand delivered to the Round Lake Village Hall on June 15 for distribution to the mayor and village trustees. This information also was mailed to the Ryland Homes representative. At the June 20 meeting, the Round Lake Village board approved the $720/$900 impact fees; a paltry amount compared to what was given to the Fremont School District and even considerably less than what was authorized for Big Hollow for three-bedroom townhouse units in 1997. This is not progress.

Answer to PartyLines quiz: Who is State

Sen. Terry Link's seatmate in the Illinois

Senate? Answer: Kimberly Lightford (D-

Taxpayers need to be aware that the final authorization of impact fee amounts is made by the village board; not the developer and not the school district. The $720/$900 impact fee is solely the decision of the Round Lake Village board.

Deserves credit

Let's look at Governor Blagojevich's record for working families.

He raised the state minimum wage to $6.50 an hour-something that helps families put food on the table and brings money to all of our communities.

He extended health insurance for the first time to 74,000 working parents, with two-thirds of the tab paid for by the federal government.

He invested in our children by expanding the Illinois food program to tens of thousands of kids in childcare.

He further invested in the education of our children by expanding pre-school for 8,000 at-risk children. That's good for all of us; studies show that for every dollar spent on early education, taxpayers save $17.

The Governor deserves a lot of credit for his hard work for working families, and I've rarely seen an elected official get less credit for what he's done. So let's give credit where it's due: Thank you Governor Blagojevich, for fighting for working families

Need to be experts

On June 28, we attended our first Gavin School Board meeting in over 20 years. We no longer have children in the system, but were interested in hearing answers from the board to some of the questions from district residents.

After the April election, which replaced four of the six board members, and the resignation of the current district superintendent, we were expecting a new and hopefully more enlightened approach to Gavin's well publicized financial and facility problems.

We were disappointed. Earnestly asked questions were met, for the most part, with shrugs, stares and silence. No member of the board seemed able to even re-state the questions and attempt to answer with facts, or state when answers would be available. The atmosphere was adversarial rather than enlightening.

I don't personally know the backgrounds of the current Gavin board members, but I hope that each can take on a specific portion of the many problems and become expert enough to supply direct answers to residents questions. Confidence in the new board is crucial with many critical problems/decisions ahead in the Gavin School District.

Time to get out

While we never should have gone into Iraq, and were mislead into the war anyway by George Bush, we now must face up to our mistakes. Try to repair the probably irreparable damage and get out rather than stay to try to establish a permanent base (probably Bush's real agenda).

Truss sampling mutual

Regarding Boller Construction statement on Gavin Central School, "While the final figures have not been presented in court, it appears that originally there were 17 trusses with 23 full trusses," the statement read. "The school board ordered 32 additional trusses to be cut apart for sampling. Because of the way the board did its destruction and their failure to provide adequate support for their truss mutilation, it has caused more problems to fix than the original 17." (Lakeland Newspapers June10-05.)

Boller's engineering firm (WJE) has always found many more trusses involved (currently 60 plus) than their employer (8, 14, and currently 17 and 23?). The school board did not order any trusses to be cut! Trusses were "sampled" by mutual agreements and procedures between district and Boller engineers. WJE has been in Central School 100 olus days - many more days than district engineers!

Absolutely no mutilation occurred by either district engineers or the school board! The school board only followed through a legal process, on behalf of their community; to recover damages, repair, and/or replacement on a structurally unsafe building.

The Regional Office of Education condemned the building.

Parents have been sued by Boller
Construction for voicing their frustration.
Obviously, parents do not have the same
First Amendment rights as Big Business, with the above and other derogatory statements made against the school board.

The school board protected the community with the best of what was available, as they were sworn to do. If the school board had the "construction power" alluded to above, it is certain that Central would now be housing children instead of engineers and truss supports!

Work together

I am a recent graduate of Grayslake Community High School and a collegebound student. Last semester in consumer education we touched on the issue of malpractice insurance rates skyrocketing in the area. I am glad to see that people in the area are trying to do something about this, because if it is not stopped, the trend will continue to grow and soon there may not be any doctors in this area. Citizens and doctors have a symbiotic relationship that needs to stay alive. If malpractice insurance keeps rising, doctors will either, stay and charge more money to their patients, or move to another state where insurance is at a much lower rate. In order for citizens to be provided with an opportunity to be healed at a reasonable price, both political parties must work together and solve this one step at a time.

CareCoach comes to GLCUs

Great Lakes Credit Union recently entered into a partnership with Lake Forest Hospital and its mobile health unit "CareCoach" to bring a variety of free preventive health services and educational programs to Lake County residents.

In service since 1999, the Lake Forest Hospital's CareCoach is a fully-equipped mobile health unit, staffed with two full-time licensed healthcare professionals, and offers: blood pressure screenings, blood sugar (glucose) screenings, cholesterol screenings, osteoporosis bone density tests for women over 40 and health behavior/health risk appraisals.

The following is the schedule of the CareCoach visits to the GLCU Service Centers this year: July 22-In Round Lake Beach, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Aug. 8-In Gurnee, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.; Aug. 26-In North Chicago, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Sept. 23—In Waukegan, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. For details, call Susan Malo at GLCU at 847-578-8869.

money and not war, Cappelluti said. "It's very rare that you have a drive-by shooting in Waukegan with African-American gangs, unless it's related to narcotics," he said.

But as drugs relate back to gang activity, law enforcement relies on more clever methods of arresting gang members. Officers patrol city hotspots to search for gang members and dealers they know, and surveillance equipment is used to monitor parks and street corners where gangs are known to congregate.

A three-month project known as Operation Street Hustler recently yielded dozens of drug-related arrests, as NET officers videotaped suspects making drug deals with undercover officers.

Officers often search the areas near the gang members they interact with to check for drugs, Cappelluti said. "We check the bushes, property lines and trees," he said. "We make it very hard for them to do that."

Gangs that focus efforts on making money through drug trades search out younger recruits just as the Hispanic gangs do, Cappelluti said. Juveniles can be easy to persuade because "all they see is money and girls," he said, and they'll be treated as juveniles if arrested.

Money and a flashy, rebellious lifestyle often attracts minors to gangs, which offer a home to many youth looking for acceptance, Rasmussen said. "What it comes to membership, they'll take pretty much anybody," he said. "With numbers, they have power."

of her staff.

Betty Harrison, public works superintendent in Wauconda, said while the weather has been dry, that does not mean the West Nile encephalitis cannot be present. The season lasts until the weather cools in August or September.

The Health Department is urging residents to prevent mosquito breeding and to prevent mosquito bites. Recommendations to prevent mosquito breeding include, according to the Lake County Health Department:

Discard old tires, buckets, drums or any water holding containers. Poke holes in tires used as bumpers at docks; keep roof gutters and downspouts clear of debris; keep trash containers covered; empty plastic wading pools at least once a week and store indoors when not in use; drain unused swimming pools; fill in tree rot holes and hallow stumps that hold water; change the water in bird baths and plant urns at least once a week.

Recommendations to prevent mosquito bites include: whenever possible, limit outdoor activity at dusk; wear light-colored clothing that minimizes exposed skin and provides some protection from mosquito bites; make sure door and window screens fit tightly and that all holes are repaired; whenever applying mosquito repellent to exposed skin, always follow label directions; whenever possible, avoid application of repellent to bare skin, applying only to clothing.

While most people infected with West Nile virus have no symptoms of illness, some may become very ill. Usually there are three to 15 days after the bite of an infected mosquito before symptoms show. In some cases, particularly the elderly, the virus may cause muscle weakness, inflammation of the brain (encephalitis), stiff neck, stupor, disorientation, tremors, convulsions, paralysis or death, according to the health department. Information about West Nile virus can be found on the Lake County Department Web site Health www.co.lake.il.us/health/ehs/westnile.asp.

Residents of the Arbor Vista subdivision decided they did not want to change garbage carriers when they begin recycling. Rather than have a new company come in, the residents had an other company's truck enter the subdivision on Route 45 and force a delay of the new company.

The Village of Wauconda won a second place award in the Governor's Home Town Awards competition. The village received the award for the efforts made by the booster club, which raised $55,000 for new lights on the school's athletic fields.

A 20-year-old Fox Lake woman died in a car accident when her vehicle rolled over on Fish Lake Road. Her 9-month-old baby strapped into a car seat was unhurt.

A Round Lake teacher filed a formal objection against a petition circulated to place a referendum on a ballot. The teacher contested that less than 800 of the 1,000 signatures were valid. The referen-

Inspectors from the National Transportation Safety Board were looking into a fatal plane crash in rural Fremont Township. The plane crashed nose first in a hay field of Gilmer Road. Two Mundelein residents were killed in the accident.

The State Bank of Antioch was proud to show off its new cash station machine. As an incentive to use the machine, customers were offered prizes. Bank officials said the machines were a popular addition.

'Painted Lady' contest isn't just for Victorians

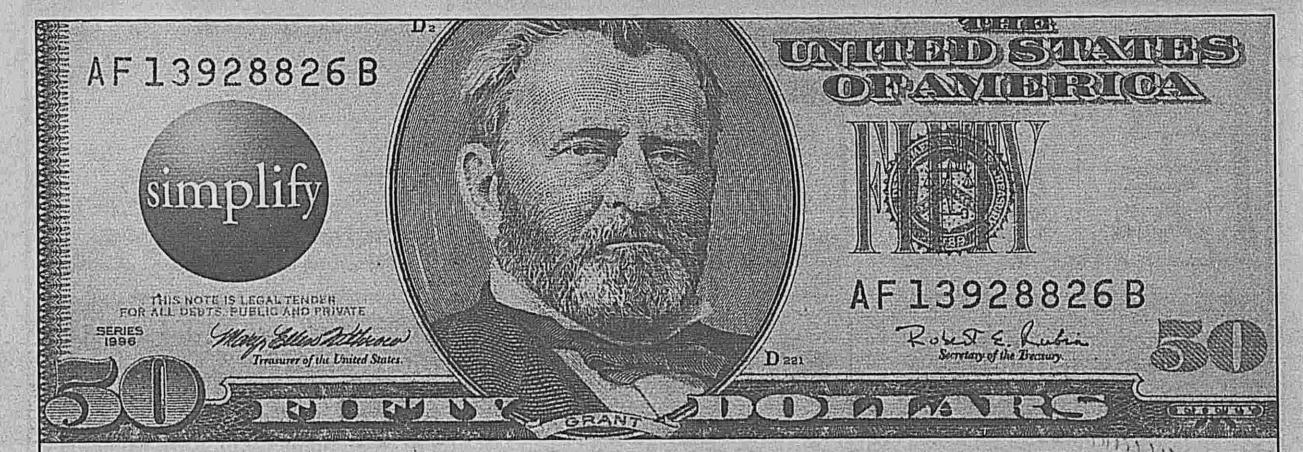

The 19th annual "Chicago's Finest Painted Ladies" competition, a "beauty contest" for homes began Memorial Day. This search for area residences and commercial properties that have been repainted imaginatively by their owners continues until Labor Day, Sept. 5. Homes painted after Labor Day 2004 through Labor Day 2005 are eligible. Winners are honored with a special plaque prepared exclusively for them to commemorate their achievement. The awards are presented during a special dinner celebration hosted by the Chicago Paint & Coatings Association. This year's celebration will feature guest speaker, "Mr. Fix-it", Lou Manfredini.

Homes and commercial properties within a 50-mile radius of Chicago are eligible for entry into the contest. The area is divided into categories and sections: professional and non-professional; and North, Northwest, West, Southwest, South and Northwest Indiana sections. Consideration is given to color choice as enhancement, how well colors fit into the surrounding neighborhood and the imaginative use of color and interesting application.

Chicago Paint & Coatings Association offers information and applications at 847-755-9850 or CIRCA, 400 E. State Parkway, Suite 216, Schaumburg, Ill. 60173 or www.chicagopaint.org.

Painted Lady contest recognizes creative, use of color and interesting application.

Carmel golf phenom Kate White is on a roll, winning multiple junior championships—and she's only on her first set of clubs

By Dan Patrick

Sports Reporter

lmost to the point of becoming cliche, "natural" is a word that's thrown around a lot in sports. From basketballers to boxers, every newcomer with some success is suddenly thrust into the realm of the "natural."

Frankly, there's no such thing as a natural; hard work and determination are the ingredients for athletic success - and there's nothing natural about that.

For example, Carmel golf star and Waukegan resident Kate White has risen to play with some of the best golfers in Lake County over the course of her career, despite only beginning to play competitively just three years ago.

"I started right before freshman year; that's when I started playing in tournaments and that's when I really got into it," Kate said. "Before female junior ranks. While she's a then, I was into other sports, but right before my freshman year was when I really wanted to work on my game and play for the team."

Kate has turned endless hours of practice into a game that seems, well, natural. The Corsair senior doesn't even let the weather slow her down like so many weekend warriors looking to knock some strokes off of their scores.

"During the winter, we go to the Highland Park dome, we have a chipping net in the backyard and we have a putting green in the base-ment," Kate said. "It's always been a part of my life; my dad played golf, his dad played golf, it's a part of the whole family tradition."

Over the course of her competitive career, Kate has won 12 tournaments, placed second for the Illinois Junior Golf Association Player of the Year Honors and is counted amongst the country's best in the newcomer to the competitive scene, putters and drivers are certainly nothing new in Kate's life.

"It runs in my family. My dad (Joseph) is a pretty good golfer and so is my mom, so it kind of fit," Kate said. "We had plastic clubs in the living room...We went out to Bonnie Brook a lot and we used to play nine holes and we used to play in tournaments a couple of times every year."

Golf may not be new in her life, but her clubs certainly are. After battling her mother for the use of clubs for most of her life, Kate received her own set after her sophomore year subsequently knocking eight strokes off of her game.

"(The clubs) are mostly handme-downs from my mom, but I have my own set now," Kate said. "It was good because now I don't have to argue with my mom on who would be getting the clubs for the weekend."

Kate's mother, Liz, said golf has been a family affair for the Whites. Kate actually got her start golfing during family outings when she was a child.

"My husband loves the game probably more than any of us and in turn, I didn't used to play that much until I got married," Liz said. "My father's a big golfer, so are my brothers and sisters, and we had hoped that Kate would enjoy the game because it was something we could do together as a family."

What has helped her game is her ties to the cradle of the golf game in Europe. Her father was born in Ireland and every member of the White family shares a love for the tin cup.

"He has cousins in Ireland that are avid golfers," Liz said. "We're due back there next year and hopefully we can get her in a south of Ireland tournament when we're over there. My husband was born there and it's a wonderful time. Both of his cousins have lifetime memberships at Ballybunion and Lahinch and it's so much fun."

While most of us would be simply taking in the sights at such esteemed courses, Kate is working on her game. With such a dedication, it seems that what is natural for the high school senior is a will to win.

"They have different kinds of courses over there and you can get a feel for different types," Kate said. "The greens are faster there in some of those courses. Most of the time when I go out there, it's not just to play, it's to work on my swing, my short game.

"Golf is just a huge part of my life."

Writing without wisdom

riting a column about high school sports in the heart of the summer

Writing a column about high school sports in the heart of the summer with a swollen ice bag sandwich for a face is another.

You see, in tooth land, the wisest teeth are apparently also the most gigantic. And they don't like to be messed with. But as I lay in that giant red chair, with more wires coming out of me than the Six Million Dollar Man, it hit me that this was going to be yet another summer of pain.

Just about five years ago, not even a week removed from the excitement of the last day of school, I strolled down my street with a giant water jug sloshing back and forth as I walked to my first varsity summer soccer camp. It was about 7:30 a.m., but the sun was already taunting the back of my neck, letting my whole body know what it was in for.

And as I turned the corner towards the playing field, I saw a good group of older players already there. They had already finished their "optional" workout before "summer camp," and I remember seeing their drenched T-shirts and empty water bottles (remember nothing has technically even started yet) and thinking: "Wow, this is going to be a summer of pain."

That was my first summer training with the varsity team, preparing for the fall soccer season. It was a very long summer, where the sun rose with me on the way to the weight room every morning and the summer ceded with a little glimpse of what Hell might be, or as coaches call it,

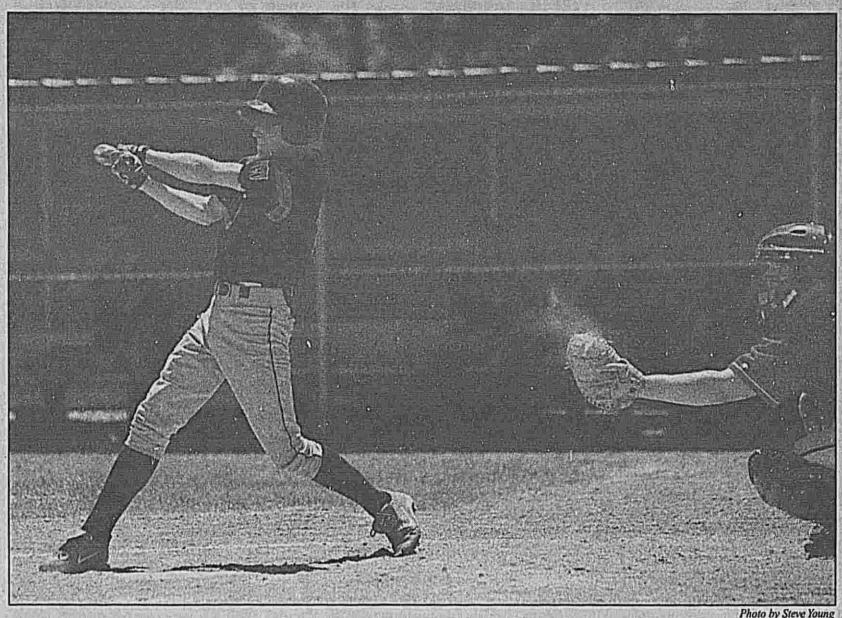

"Conditioning week."

But just like these wisdom teeth, which I am told is worth it (jury is still out on that one), it is all worthwhile in the end. For high school athletes, images of summer aren't beaches, ice cream and vacations. High school athletes have images of cramped-up calf sually bitter enemies to the end, at least when it comes to sports, many people from Illinois and Wisconsin just plain don't like each other. And it's been that way for nearly a century.

From the more recent squabbles between Cubs and Brewers partisans to the ongoing hostilities between Bears and Packers fans, now more than 80 years strong, the rivalry is fierce, with the border serving as almost a sort of Mason-Dixon Line in the sports landscape.

Given that many Illinois and Wisconsin sports fans would prefer to avoid any prolonged contact with their neighbors from across the border, it's hard to believe that a bunch of teenagers from the two states could even play on the same team, let alone succeed.

But that's exactly what the

> Ron Cass Kenosha Indians 18-U manager

Kenosha Indians travel baseball team has been doing for years. And there's hardly a trace of rivalry between the players, comprised almost evenly of Illinois and Wisconsin teens, according to Ron Cass, manager of the 18-U team.

"You won't find nearly as much of a rivalry as you would think," said Cass, a Wildwood resident. "These guys all take baseball serious-ly. That's always the first thing on their minds."

And the Indians certainly have the success part down. The 16-U team, which Cass managed last year, finished 38-8 and reached the Sweet 16 of the NABF National Tournament in Millington, Tenn. last July. Primarily a tournament team that uses weekday games as tune-ups, the Indians won three tournaments last summer and took second in three others.

Now Cass, in his sixth season with the program, has moved up to the 18-U level and nine players from last year's 16-U team are along for the ride. While the success of last year's team hasn't imme-diately followed Cass to the next level, as the Indians currently have just a single second place tournament showing to their credit, the coach feels it's just a matter of time.

"This year's team is very talented, we just haven't been able to field the full team yet, because of injuries and com-mitments to other teams," Cass said. "But we're still a few games above .500 and we're looking to bring it all together for the National Tournament in Greensboro, N.C. in a few weeks."

After struggling at the plate to start the summer, the Indians have come alive at the plate of late, and are riding a modest four-game win-ning streak. Not coincidental-ly, the team's bats started to come around when recent Round Lake grad and Lakeland's Baseball Player of the Year Mike Hughes joined the team six games ago. In his tournament, Valparaiso, Ind., Hughes belted a pair of homers. "We really got lucky when we came out because we had just lost our catcher (Bryan Olle) to an injury," Cass said. "He's going to be key for us."

Another Hughes, Antioch's Nate, has also been key for Kenosha, as has teammate Chandler Kent.

"Nate's done a phenomenal job for us," Cass said. "It's a good thing he graduated because now he can come to every game. And Kent has done a great job. He has a great glove and his bat's starting to come around."

Though the team lacks power up and down the lineup, with Kent, Nate Hughes, Erick Muhlenbeck and Josh Staples at the top of the order, the Indians can run with anyone, and they have, with 23 successful steals in 27 attempts.

And Kenosha hopes for another shot in the arm in the next two weeks with the return of pitchers Ryan Ricci, of Mundelein, and Rockford's Matt Shelton, from injury.

It's been the pitching that has helped carry the Indians in the early going. Of course, when you have two Division I pitchers at the top of your rotation (Andrew Wolcott, Duke; Shelton, Indiana State), pitching is going to be a strength.

"Our pitching has been great," Cass said. "Andrew is a mainstay at the top of the rotation and Shelton's our Number Two. Ricci and Brett Jensen have done a good job, too. When you go to as many tournaments as we do, you need all the pitching you can get." Tournaments always been the focus of the Indians, as Cass places a huge emphasis on getting his players a chance to impress the college scouts that are usually in attendance. 'We try to draw our players from a very high level," Cass said. "Our goal is to get them to play at the college level, and we've been very successful at doing that. That's why we target the high-level tournaments."

Cass has an additional goal in mind, however.

"We're not going to go to the (national) tournament with the same record as last year but this group is more talented," dass said. "I really feel we'll go further if things keep going according to

Filling in the blanks

Grayslake seeks to round out lineup, pitching staff

By Brian Janosch

Staff Reporter

all it a case of stating the obvious, but when asked about what he's looking for this summer, Grayslake coach Troy Whalen made it very clear that he's only looking for two things - pitching and hitting.

It may seem a bit general, but as Whalen put it, there's a place on a team for anyone that can succeed at either aspect of the game.

"If you can pitch, you have a good chance of seeing the field." Whalen said. "And, or if you can hit."

Whalen is certainly getting plenty to look at this summer. Carrying 28 players, Grayslake could man three teams this summer let alone one. One sophomore was brought up for the summer to join 17 juniors and 10 seniors. It's a lot to look at, but Whalen has some pretty easy advice for the kids to make an impact and, hopefully, the spring squad.

'Work hard, and make an impression," he said. "Understand what it takes to make the team."

So far, Whalen added, the team has seen the ups and downs expected with a new generation of ball players. The team is still playing above .500 ball, but there are still holes to be filled.

The left side of the Rams' infield provided most of Grayslake production last year with the nowgraduated Josh Damore and senior Micah Yarbrough. Yarbrough will return to help lead this year's squad, but finding a replacement shortstop would round out an infield that also features fellow senior second baseman Corey Jeffers.

"(The newer guys) just need to listen as much as they can." Jeffers said. "Following someone who's a senior also helps because you learn a lot from them as well."

Jeffers has stepped into the role as one of those senior role models this summer, and is using the break from school to try and beef up his offensive output. Nearly every day Jeffers hits the cages and takes pitches.

"Last year I was solid defensively, so I'm trying to keep that up but I'm working mostly on hitting for the summer," he said.

Whalen understands Jeffers' offensive mindset this summer as pitching certainly pulled the Rams to their 15-19 record last year. Yarbrough and junior pitcher Gerry Martinez will both come back to help the staff, but the lineup suffered the biggest hit in losing Damore sho hit .1314 ane made

The heat of the summer has been put to use this year in Grayslake, ironing out some of the little wrinkles that have been costing the Rams victories. It seemed a consensus to both player and coach that play has never been horrible, but rather inconsistent. But that's what summer is for.

"It's just little mistakes," Jeffers said. "We're not seeing too many teams that really impress us, it's just the little things that keep adding up."

Warren baseball off to phenomenal summer start, now 10-1

By Rob Backus

Sports Editor

wo years ago, Warren's baseball program was flying sky high.

Thanks to the play of a pair of Division I players, Scott Shaw (Illinois) and Dan Spino (Illinois State), the Devils won 22 games and their first regional title this century. And despite losing its two leaders to graduation, Warren was able to count on another D-I duo in Adam Worthington (UIC) and Andrew Wolcott (Duke) in hopes of another deep postseason run.

However, Wolcott was felled by a shoulder injury that cost him much of the season and the team's bats, outside of Worthington and fellow senior Kevin Pollard, never really got going. Still, the Devils won a respectable total of 18 games and fell just short of another regional crown with a loss to Stevenson in the final.

On paper, that appeared to be Warren's last shot at postseason success for the next few years. After Wolcott, Worthington and a host of other seniors graduated in June, the team's cupboard was nearly bare of experienced varsity players, with just six holdovers returning next year.

You would think the team would be in for a major rebuilding year, having to suffer through the same trials and tribulations of any other inexperienced squad. But the Devils are proving to be the exception rather than the rule, as their 10-1 summer record would indicate.

Though he's pleased with his team's blistering start, Warren coach Dar Townsend knows there's still a long way to go for his team to prove they're ready to succeed when it counts next spring.
"We're doing real well, but you kind of have to take sum-

We've been hitting the ball well and putting it in play. That's really going to help our confidence. The sophomores didn't have a good year, but now they're 10-1 and that has them juiced up for the season.'

mer records with a grain of salt," Townsend said. "Just because we're winning now, it doesn't necessarily translate into the actual season. We'll know more with how we play in the (Illinois High School Coaches Baseball Association) tournament in a couple weeks.

"But winning breeds winning. So our play so far has definitely been a positive thing for this team."

With so many of the usual suspects from the last two years gone, several players will have to step up if the Devils have any hope of sustained success. Fortunately, several players appear ready to fit the bill, led by junior-tobe and Lakeland Co-Rookie of the Year Mario Perez.

"Mario's really stood out this summer," Townsend said. "He's getting a lot of innings and he's been doing a fine job."

Though he has some big shoes to fill in taking over for Worthington at shortstop, Vinnie Vitale has been more than adequate so far this summer, according to Townsend. Vitale, along with Mark Deason, Marc Mirretti and Brian Behnke, is seeing extensive time in the field, both on the high school team and on Gurnee's American Legion squad. Perez is also on the River Dogs' roster, though he spends most of his time with the Devils.

"Summer's all about development and if the kids can play Legion ball, they'll face better competition, including college kids, so it's only going to help," Townsend said.

Although Townsend knows what his getting with his six returning players, the rest of the roster is up in the air. However, a number of newcomers are doing their best to cement their spots in the lineup and in the rotation.

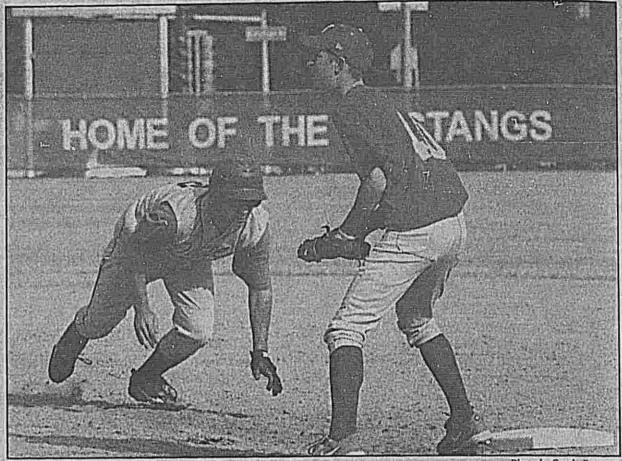

"Brennan Drew has been hitting well in the three spot and he's done a great job behind the plate," the coach said. "We brought up Brian Schmidt when Andrew went down last year and he's been doing a nice job in the middle of the order. And Vinnie Vivirito, Troy Bloom and Matt Walters are all very athletic and they've been giving us very good defense in the out-field."

The infield defense, however, is a different story, as Townsend sees it as the team's major question mark. Of course, that's bound to happen when the entire infield graduates.

"Our biggest concern is being able to play solid infield defense," Townsend said. "We hope some kids step up. But they're learning and we've been playing better every

It's safe to say, though, that Townsend has been more than pleased with his team's hitting, especially among the incoming juniors.

"We've been hitting the ball well and putting it in play," he said. "That's really going to help our confidence.

Building consistency one pitch at a time

Libertyville Bandits 8-1 in District 10 games despite topsy-turvy play

By Dan Patrick

Sports Reporter

ith an 8-1 District
10 record and an 18-7 overall mark,
Libertyville
Bandits coach Larry Short should have a lot to be proud of. However, what the win-loss column doesn't show is the nature of the losses as Bandit pitchers have been suffering from control issues all summer

"We've played okay in stretches, but as we reach this point in the summer, our biggest factor has been our consistency in pitching," Short said. "We've got above average pitching, but we want to have excellent pitching; if we don't throw strikes, then we don't win."

The man on the mound is undoubtedly the primary position in baseball. After all, a 1-2 count is a long way from 2-1 in a team's confidence.

"In the games we've lost, they've given away six or seven runs from walks or hit batsmen," Short said. "If we ever consistently throw the ball well, then we'll be okay."

It hasn't all been the blues for the Bandits' pitching staff. Area standouts from both Carmel and Libertyville high schools have emerged as leaders for the Legion squad.

"Matt Diedrich came in and pitched a great game against Elmhurst, he only gave up three hits, one walk and we beat them 2-1," Short said. "Michael Larry's been very consistent for us on the mound, Kyle Johnson's been very good for us this summer as well as Aaron Hall."

Walks haven't been the only statistic plaguing the Libertyville ranks over the course of the summer season. The Bandits have also suffered enormous lapses in the field, racking up more than five errors in two games.

"In one game against Northbrook, we had five errors, in a game against Grayslake, we had eight errors. You just don't win a lot of ballgames that way," Short said. "We've been snake-bitten by mental and physical errors. If a guy takes it out of the park or gets a hit, he gets a hit, but don't put guys on base with walks, it just kills you. That's been the name of our season – inconsistency."

Walks and errors go hand-in-hand with unwanted base runners. In Libertyville's game against Lake in the Hills during the recent Stevenson tournament, the Bandits ended the game with seven walks, two hit batsmen and three errors—with eight of those 12 base runners converted into runs.

Coach Short has theorized that what may be hurting his summer league team is the "summer" part of the equation. Without the structured practice schedule of the normal school season, some players might not be receiving the same level of fundamental work they would be getting during the spring season.

"They've got to realize that we need to play good defense to win; let the other team win instead of our kids beating themselves," Short said. "Summertime's hard for these kids because they have so many off days...you have to practice on your own as well as do the running, which is hard because kids of this age don't have as much self-motivation."

Short attributes the defensive miscues on a sort of slippery slope of fielding folly. If the Bandits make a few mistakes, Short said it's likely to snowball into more miscues for the players.

"The kids are good, quality players, but when you get a few mental errors, then things start piling up," Short said. "Once they get a couple of errors, they start to think'Is this going to happen again?' and they start to second-guess themselves and you can't have that on the field."

While many area teams would be more than happy sitting at 11 games over .500, the Bandits manager believes his players aren't playing up to their potential. There still is a long way to go before the American Legion tournaments begin and Short is confident his team can finally shore up their weaknesses on the field.

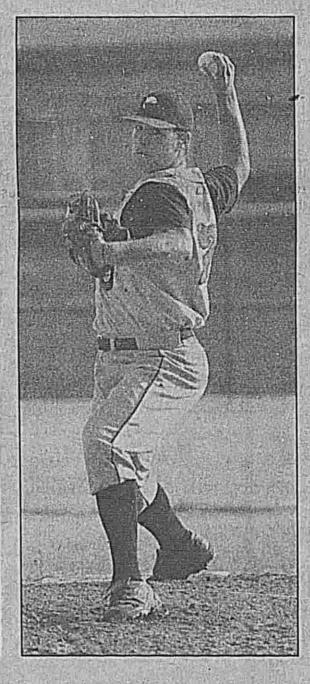

"We've got a good group of kids and I think they're better than their overall record shows," Short said. We've played okay in stretches, but as we reach this point in the summer, our biggest factor has been our consistency in pitching. We've got above average pitching, but we want to have excellent pitching; if we don't throw strikes, then we don't win.'

Larry Short Libertyville Bandits coach

A Gall to arms

Antioch searching for next season's strong arms to round out pitching rotation

By Brian Janosch Staff Reporter

uring the spring, en route to a 16-20 record, the Antioch Sequoits made a habit of literally pounding out their wins.

Averaging more than seven runs per game, a sub-.500 mark may seem a bit surprising, but you know what is said about pitching and defense. That's why head coach Paul Petty is making it a summer objective to find some hurlers to team up with a punishing offensive approach.

Petty's top returning pitcher and first baseman Bryan Vos is playing more legion ball this summer, but so far Petty has been happy with the effort from the younger players. He made it clear that summer isn't necessarily about wins and losses, but rather finding the pieces that can equate to victories nearly a year from

For the Segouits this year, the first steps along that road to redefining a ball club are small ones. Petty breaks down the mechanics of pitching to the most infinitesimal level, and then has players work on one or two adjustments rather than a whole hoard of changes. A lot of kids will come to Petty having pitched all their lives, but there's always more work to be done.

'I tell the kids, "I'm not going to be able to change you from doing something, but you can make it happen yourself."

> Paul Petty Antioch baseball coach going to be able to change you from doing something, but you can make it happen yourself," Petty said.

This approach towards grooming a team is carrying over to the rest of the squad as well. Pitching is certainly atop the list of areas to improve for the summer, but that doesn't mean there aren't holes left in the lineup that ravaged the North Suburban Conference last year.

Antioch sported two seniors on this year's All-Lakeland team in second baseman Mike Fuchs and outfielder Nate Hughes. Between the two, Antioch is looking to fill an 81-hit, 64run void left at the top of their batting order. In Fuchs and Hughes last year, Petty knew at least one would get on base every game as Fuchs held an on-base percentage of .457, while Hughes batted .443.

"I tell the kids, 'I'm not Petty hopes can fill the leadership vacancy also happen to man the left side of his infield. Shortstop Ghandler Kent, a Lakeland secondteamer, and third baseman Brandon Geweke will be burdened with the brunt of the leadership load along with Vos.

They all have varsity experience and they should be able to step up," Petty said. "Those three have been there for me the most."

But like Kent, Geweke and Vos did last season, a truly successful season hinges on the ability of the younger players to step in and fill positions with solid play. And so far this summer, several younger players have already caught Petty's eye.

Trevor Popp, who's stepped in to man second base, was described as "solid" by his coach. He continues to work on some smaller adjustments, but Petty hopes that by the spring his middle infield can be just as solid as last sea-

Senior Justin Brown is one of the few seniors not to jump to a legion team this summer, and has provided a better atmosphere for the entire team. Petty described him as a "hustling kid" that should help motivate some of the fresh faces, new to the varsity level.

Rounding out what should prove to be a strong infield next year may very well be catcher Craig Holst, The two players that who has impressed Perry thus far into the summer.

Mundelein's Parola tries to build program after surprise 30-win season

By Dan Patrick

Sports Reporter

or many years, the Mundelein baseball program stood as a monolithic Goliath amongst the Lake County sports scene. With multiple 30-win seasons, regional, sectional and even state titles the Mustangs had it all - then came 2003.

After years of dominance, Mundelein baseball seemed to have lost its touch with a 12-20 finish in 2004. However, 2005 was a different story as the team finished 30-10 with a berth in the sectional finals. Mustang coach Todd Parola knows he has a lot to live up to, but he's going to build his team one game at a time.

"I think things are going good, we've usually done pretty well offensively but sometimes we have some off nights; we're trying to improve some problem areas and I think we're doing a good job, " Parola said. "Offense hasn't really been a problem for us usually, but it has faltered. We're working to get some consistency and play with good fundamentals."

While the rest of us have been lounging away in the beautiful summer weather, Mundelein's players are play-ing a full schedule, honing their skills for 2006. It hasn't all been pretty as Grayslake manhandled the Mustangs 5-1 last Monday, but the season before the season has allowed coach Parola's players see some situations on the field.

"We've been able to get out of some bad situations before and that's because our pitchers have done relatively well over the course of the summer," Parola said. "We've got some of our older guys on the mound and it helps us out when we're in some tight games."

In coach Parola's eyes, Mundelein's offense has been the bright spot in the summer months with multiple Mustang vets taking charge of their bats and the team's run production.

"For the most part, we've been able to put up some good numbers; there have been a few games where we haven't been able to get many runs, but we've done pretty well offensively," Parola said. "We've got a number of players that have really stepped up for us during the last few weeks. (Tom) Shaver's done a nice job for us, Ryan Ricci and Ian Sanchez have all done well at the plate."

Defense has been the area of concern for the coaching staff, but as the summer has progressed, coach Parola has generally liked what he's seen. But, like any coach, there is always room for improvement in his eyes.

"We're still pretty strong defensively as well," Parola said. "Some of our best players out on the field include Rob Burns, Brian Petty and Kevin Mitchell. As long as that core group of guys can keep playing well on the field and avoid errors, we could really make some strides this summer."

Mustang veteran Tom Shaver also cites defense as the weakest link in Mundelein's game plan. As the innings have piled up, Shaver has seen some improvement from his

"Our infield defense can be a little shaky at times but we're adjusting to that," Shaver said. "It's kind of a work in progress, but I think we're doing pretty well."

Shaver is especially pleased with the No. 1 defensive player - the man on the mound. Despite ending up on the wrong end of the Grayslake game, hurler Cameron Adams pitched out of bases loaded situations twice in the game.

"What keeps us in games, is good pitching," Shaver said. "Cameron (Adams) got some good off-speed pitches in there and we were able to get some outs when we needed to."

If the unit is going to continue on the road it paved with its strong 2005, Shaver said the team must play not as Mustangs, but as Mundelein's team.

"The main reason for the success we had last year was the way the junior and senior classes came together," Shaver said. "If we're going to follow that up this year, we've got to come together in that same way.

"The junior and senior classes for next year represent the winningest sophomore teams in the school's history, if we can put it all together, we're going to be tough."

muscles, sweat-rung shirts and vomiting teammates.

I look back at those summers, and realize how hellish they really were to go through. But then I realize I'm only 20 years old and I've already passed the most physically fit time of my life. I was a machine back then, and now the only machine in my life pumped laughing gas into me so four giant chunks could be torn from my jaw.

It's a nightmare to fight through. The summer is never, ever easy on a high school athlete. But at some point in life, maybe sooner than you think, you'll look back and realize through all the pain and torture, something was accom-plished and you overcame adversity that very few men could handle—of any age.

Renegotiations - The

about a change that requires overtime for an employee who is not compensated for overtime? What about a job description that is changed to include travel? Should a single parent be expected to find a different job or provide his or her own childcare when required to travel for a week or two?

A mother and son duo ready to keep you well-loved and entertained! Mom, Zimba (black), can definitely outrun her son and can often be found softly body-slamming her son to get him to chase her. Sometimes it works, sometimes it doesn't...well Bailey does carry a little bit too much weight, so he feels that it is wise occasionally to ignore her. Instead he happily plops himself in the pool and watches her run around, much more relaxing. They both get along with dogs and cats and would do well with older children. They would love a fenced-in yard, and although Bailey probably doesn't want to hear it, a little bit of a diet would do him good. Zimba (about 10 years old) and Bailey (about 7) need a home together. Don't let their age fool you, they are much more active than some of the middle-aged dogsl

Updated 'Dollhouse' works well in its contemporary mode

By Tom Witom

Henrik Ibsen's play, "A Doll's House," which was groundbreaking when first performed in 1879, zooms into the 21st century in a fresh, inspired remake by playwright Rebecca Gilman ("Spinning into Butter," "Boy Gets Girl").

Making its world premiere at the Goodman Theatre, Gilman's "Dollhouse" takes a contemporary spin yet owes much to the framework of the original.

Money matters, status symbols, security as well as the role of women in marriage and friendship between the sexes remain at the heart of the intense two-hour 20-minute drama under the impassioned direction of Robert Falls.

In Gilman's recasting, the play shifts from Christmas 1879 in a small Norwegian village to a present-day luxurious condo in Chicago's wellheeled Lincoln Park neighborhood. The set design by Robert Brill - complete with large, flatscreen TV, cushy sofa, upscale kitchen appliances and custom wood cabinets - speaks volumes about the family's focus on material possessions, even if they are drowning in credit

Maggie Siff handles the demanding role of Nora, the play's heroine. On the surface, it looks like she has the perfect life. A stay-at-home wife and mother of three children, she has fancy digs, servants to help with the housework and kids and an indulgent, if controlling, husband. What Nora appears to lack is money sense, and her husband Terry (Anthony Starke), a senior bank official, insists on auditing her shopping receipts to keep track of the spending.

What hubby doesn't know, however, is that Nora lied about getting money from her late father's estate. Instead, she secretly borrowed a large sum from an old school friend with a less-than-pristine reputation. That money went to pay for expensive treatment to get Terry off an addiction to painkillers as well as toward the down payment on their pricey home. For some time Nora has skimmed the family accounts to repay interest on what she

Now Raj (Firdous Bamji), a businessman in trouble with the Securities and Exchange Commission, is calling in his debt with a little blackmail. He's insisting that Nora persuade her husband to approve a questionable bank loan. Otherwise, Raj threatens to go to Terry, reveal the source of the cash that went toward Maggie Siff as Nora in Rebecca Gilman's "Dollhouse," based on the Henriklbsen play. It's premiering at Chicago's Goodman Theatre.

Terry's drug rehabilitation.

In the original play, a damning letter is involved. Here, it's an explosive, potentially ruinous e-

Other characters in the play take on a contemporary spin, too. There's Kristine (Elizabeth Rich), Nora's old schoolmate who is firmly grounded in the real world and who has come from Atlanta looking for work in the aftermath of Arthur Andersen's failure, and Pete (Lance Stuart Baker), the couple's mutual friend whose longstanding crush on Nora comes out in the open following a New Year's Eve party.

Snappy dialogue and strong acting keeps the script fresh.

Nora's frenzied takeoff on Jennifer Beals' "Flashdance" rehearsed for an upcoming 1980s costume party - gets plenty of laughs. But at the same time there's an explosive climax building.

Nora has grown tired of being treated as a plaything ("This is my playhouse, and I'm your little doll," she bitterly exclaims). When Terry, fearful that his career is in tatters, finally snaps, a desolate Nora seriously questions how much she's valued.

"Dollhouse" successfully retrofits Ibsen's classic play. It's just right for the times.

Left from Right are Margaret Nelson, Phil Cooper and Kate Early. See them play on July 16 at 8 p.m.

Off Square Music Presents Cooper, Nelson and Early

Cooper, Nelson and Early are a blend of strong individual musical talents. Phil Cooper grew up with folk music and began his career as a guitarist in 1968. His fingerstyle playing is powerful, even harp-like at times. Margaret Nelson has been singing as long as she can remember and provides alto lead and harmony vocals, percussion and comic relief. Kate Early springs from Chicago's old West Side Irish enclave. She adds elegant mid-range vocal leads and harmonies, plus percussion. The results are a three-part vocal blend and instrumentation that is a hit with any audience.

Their repertoire includes traditional English and Scottish ballads, slow airs of Scotland and Ireland, and contemporary songs with the same feel. They have performed at festivals, clubs and concerts across the U.S. and Canada.

The performance will be on July 16, at 8 p.m. atCongregational Unitarian Church, 221 Dean Street, Woodstock. Admission

Another magical summer at Circus World Museum

The 2005 Summer Season at Circus World Museum kicks off, offering a wide variety of memory making opportunities daily. Guests can tour the most extensive collection of historic circus wagons in the world as well as some of the historic buildings used by the Ringling Brothers. In addition to the various displays depicting the history of the American circus, visitors can take in one, or many of the Museum's exciting programs and shows, maybe even get in on the act.

For the first time in 20 years, tigers will be featured at Circus World this summer in Baraboo, Wis. The Tiger Adventure, made possible through the generosity of Jack Lussier, will be presented twice daily at 10:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. The Tiger Adventure offers an educational opportunity with Doug Terranova and his troupe of tigers. Visitors can learn about the training techniques used to teach the tigers different behaviors. See how these skills are shaped and incorporated into the routines performed for circus, film and television audiences.

In addition to the Tiger Adventure, there are a variety of animal rides and programs provided by a magnificent menagerie, including elephants, camels, ponies and even Buddy the Wonder Dog! Kids can also get into the act at the Kids World Circus, where children are the stars of the show, both human and animal. Presented daily at 10 a.m. and 2:15 p.m., pint-size performers shine bright at this interactive and unique performance powered by imagination.

The new 2005 Big Top Show features an international cast, exotic animals and live music sure to entertain children of all ages. Hosted by Circus World's beloved Singing Ringmaster, David SaLoutos, the show features the spectacular Smirnovs from the Moscow State Circus performing > their mystifying and magical change act, along with Canadian Dusty O'Donnell and his delightful dogs, joined by South American superstars, the amaz-Argentinean Gauchos as well as Rolla-Bolla rockin' Balancer, Javier. Of course, Circus World's resident masters of mirth and madcap fun, Greg and Karen DeSanto, will add a healthy dose of fun and laughter and don't miss the aweinspiring assemblage of African ele-phants presented by the Terranova family. This intimate one-ring show, performed under one of the last authentic big tops in America, is just one of the many memory-making moments to experience this summer at

This week's capture from Lakeland's Photographers, Sandy Bressner & John Dickson

Rebel With Four Paws

e was there for a fresh start, a chance to bury his rebellious past and make new friends. But instead he just wanted to rumble with other troublemakers in his new class. Take, for instance, Bosco, the strong-arm of the local gang whose placid, drooling countenance masked the brute force of a mastiff. And then there was the little nervous guy with the runny nose who seemed to be just looking for a fight.

Still we hoped his new teacher would break the cycle of destruction we seemed helpless to stop. Perhaps she could teach our boy to stop chewing up everything good in life and we could stop hiding things under the rug.

Luckily, instructor Amy Bieri of Happy Tails Ranch in Island Lake had our rebel pegged, expecting no less than complete obedience from the start. He balked, he growled, he did everything in his power to break away. She calmly, but consistently corrected him until he walked with the bearing befitting a champion.

Now I'm sure our puppy's breeder, Pat Blair of Ivanhoe Labs in Wauconda, would agree that "BoBo" is behaving more like a pedigreed "Beauregard" than Ronald Reagan's first running mate, "Bonzo".

And here's the rub, mom and dad are once again the reason junior needs "therapy." We were holding the reins, but we weren't in control. For example, I never stopped to think that in a matter of weeks the cute little animal I cuddled in my lap would turn into 50 pounds of pure power leaping straight for my solar plexus whenever I sat down. Nor did dad imagine himself becoming the 5 a.m. neighborhood sideshow in his blue suit, "No Bite BoBol...Staaaayl....DooWWWNN," then "Pleeeaase Potty BoBo!"

So the truth of the matter is Amy actually trains owners, not dogs. First lesson: we humans must become the unquestioned leader of the pack if we're going to get any canine respect. So much for pleading with

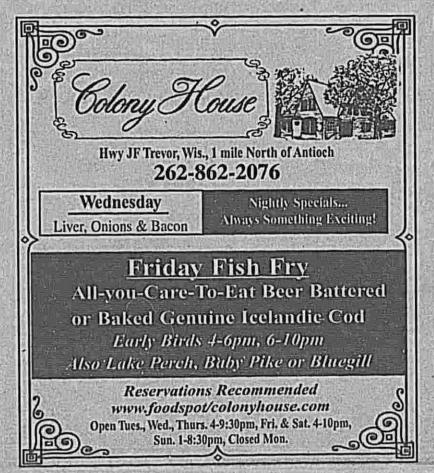

"Precious" to "let go of the nice man's trousers."

Second lesson: dogs aren't human, as much as we'd like to believe otherwise. But owners still convince themselves that their pet is the exception. For instance, the author of "How Dogs Think" notes that composer Richard Wagner relied on "criticism" from his dog when writing his operas, "a specially upholstered stool was placed next to Wagner's piano so that he (his dog) could render his canine musical expertise and criticism as needed."

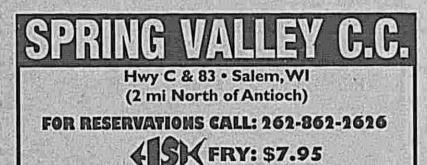

And it's hard to look into BoBo's dark, quizzical eyes and not believe he truly understands What's that BoBo? Apparently I owe readers an apology...and a quick finish.

It has a delicate flavor that's compatible with greens such as romaine and light dressings. The mint called for in the recipe you may even have growing in your backyard garden.

Creamy mint dressing: 1/2 cup crumbled goat cheese or silken tofu

5 Tbl. plain low-fat yogurt

1 tsp. Dijon mustard 2/3 cup olive oil

Salt and freshly ground . black pepper to taste

1. To make the Salad; Bring the vegetable stock to a boil in a saucepan over medium heat. Add the quinoa and salt, if desired. Reduce the heat to low, cover and cook until the quinoa is tender and the liquid is absorbed, for about 15 minutes. Remove from the heat, and set aside to cool.

2. Meanwhile, to make the creamy mint dressing: Combine the cheese, yogurt, juice, mint, garlic and mustard in a food processor or blender, and process until smooth. With the motor running, add the oil in a thin, steady stream until well blended. Season with salt and pepper to

Fantastic Four: The Fantastic Four are astronauts, whose exposure to radiation endows them with superpowers. Reed Richards/Mr. Fantastic (Ioan Gruffudd) can stretch his body. Susan Storm (Jessica Alba) becomes the Invisible Woman, who can also render other objects invisible. Her younger brother, Johnny Storm, (Chris Evans) turns into the Human Torch, who can shoot fire from his fingertips and bend flame. And Michael Chiklis, as Ben Grimm, calls himself The Thing, a hideously misshapen monster with superhuman strength. Together, they battle the evil, power hungry Doctor Doom (Julian McMahon). Not since the "Alien" series has a female character dominated a film like a Batman or Spider-Man. Alba does not fall into the cute and overly sexy trap that ensnared recent films such as "Catworn" (Halle Berry) and "Elektra" (Jennifer Garner). (PG-13) ark Water" is a remake of a 2002 Japanese thriller, which was directed by Hideo Nakata, who made the Japanese films that "The Ring" and "The Ring Two" movies were based upon. It's as good as "The Ring" and much better than "The Ring Two." All contain the central element of women and youngsters in peril.

Jennifer Connelly stars as the recently separated Dahlia Williams. She and her young daughter Ceci (Ariel Gade of "Envy") are trying to start a new life on shaky financial footing on New York's Roosevelt Island, a tram ride and a world away from "the real city," which is how Ceci describes NYC. A residential enclave of dull, foreboding apartment buildings, the saving grace for their new home is twofold, the best school around and cheap rent.

Dahlia and her husband Kyle (Dougray Scott) are going to a marriage mediator to try and work out shared custody of Ceci and it's not going well. He lives in New Jersey, with his new girlfriend Dahlia suspects. Dahlia's mental and emotional health seems fragile at best. She also takes medication for blinding migraine headaches.

The ghosts of the past haunt Dahlia as she recalls her childhood in Seattle, with a mother who created few, if any, fond memories for her. It was the norm for her obviously strung-out mother to show up late at school, with the clear attitude that she was doing Dahlia a favor to pick her up at all.

The fast-talking managing agent for the decrepit building is Mr. Murray (John C. Reilly). Neither mother nor daughter is impressed with the appearance of the apartment at first, but after the promise of a fresh coat of paint, Dahlia agrees to the terms, and Ceci becomes enthusiastic when she finds a girl's backpack with a doll on the stairwell. The building super, a weasely guy named Veeck (Pete Postlehwaite), promises Ceci that she can have the bag and the doll if no one claims it after seven days.

A mysterious, heavy dark water stain creeps across the corner of Ceci's bedroom ceiling, and footsteps move across the floor in the apartment aboveæwhere there are no tenants, according to Murray and Veeck. There's no doubt that the surreal and the real will merge.

Directed by Walter Salles ("The Motorcycle Diaries" and "Central Station"). Drama, horror, thriller. Touchstone Pictures. Rated PG-13 for mature thematic material, frightening sequences, disturbing images and brief language. Running time: 105 minutes.

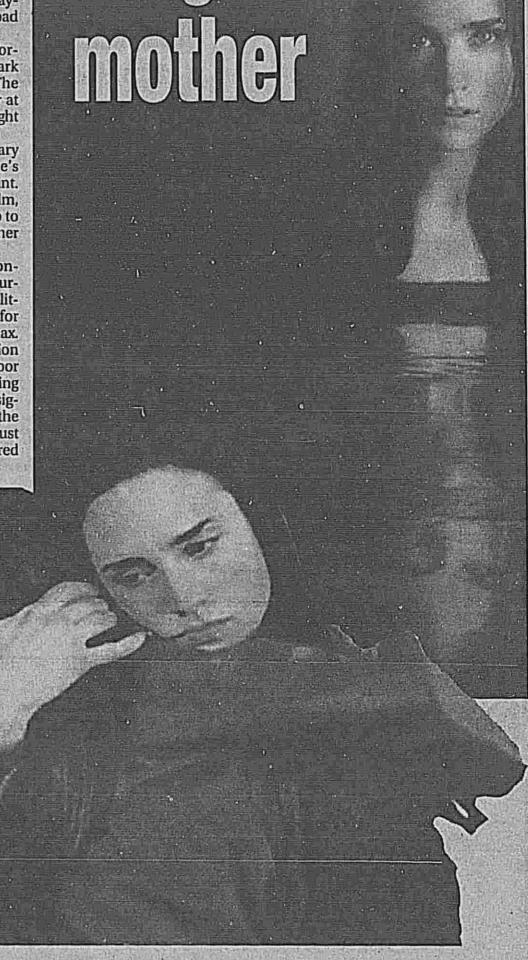

Ceci's dad Kyle seems to be unreasonable and Dahlia hires a lawyer, on the mediator's recommendation. Platzer is his name, and his faltering, questionable work habits (he appears to work out of his car) are against type for his portrayer, Tim Roth, who's usually the bad guy and in complete control.

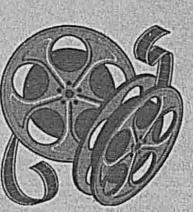

Strong supporting performances run throughout "Dark Water." Camryn Manheim ("The Practice") is a concerned teacher at Ceci's school and provides a bright spot in the story.

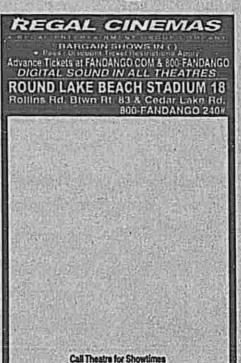

Yes, there are some scary moments and nearly everyone's motives are suspect at some point. The real frightening thing in the film, however, is what Dahlia has to do to ensure she will look out after her child, at all costs.

Unlike many other actionthriller films, often what you see during the first fifteen minutes of the literal landscape sets the stage for what can happen during the climax. While you do need to pay attention to the landmarks, the unlocked door to the roof of the apartment building with its water storage shed, the significance of the deep, dark water, the clues you get are not later used just for cheap thrillsæthey are not red herrings.

This is the NYC that Donald Trump has managed to avoid. This film proves that good horror-thrillers can come in P G - 1 3 packaging.

Life on Earth

ith a bit more action and humor than "Winged Migration," "March of the Penguins" is set in majestic Antarctica, where we . could learn from. are dropped into a world that many of us are curious about but few ever know from personal experience. In winter, temperatures drop to 80 degrees below zero, before factoring in winds up to 100 mph.

The Emperor penguin is technically a bird that can't fly, but can plunge to 1,700 feet in the icy water and hold its breath for up to 15 minutes before resurfacing. This love story about nature entertains and informs, with minimal overtones concerning man's abuse of natural resources. We follow the life cycle of these impressive though amusing looking penguins as they use teamwork to protect themselves against the brutal elements, search for a mate, court, make love and care for their young in ways that many humans

"March of the Penguins" is presented by Warner Independent Films and National Geographic, hence the astonishing photography. We are drawn into this magical world of images and sound with the story "as told by Morgan Freeman," we are informed as the film opens. Personally, we were enchanted by Freeman's voice and felt his narration lent a folk tale quality.

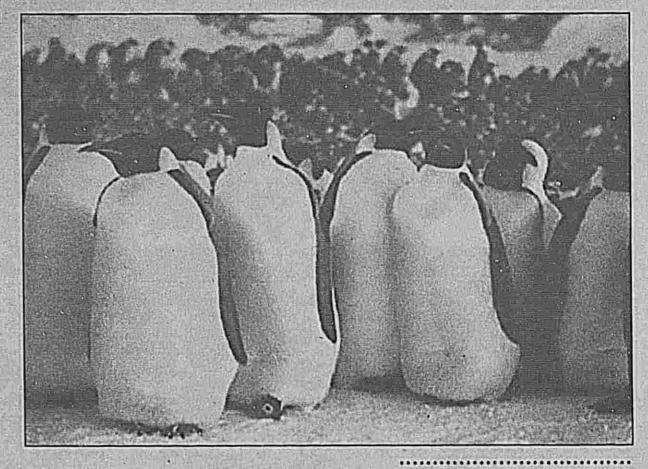

The fact that the Emperor penguins find a way to survive and prosper under these harsh conditions is a wonder of nature. Once the mother incubates the egg for the newborn for a certain period, she carefully passes it to the father, who takes over the nurturer, caregiver role, as she then returns to the sea to find food. It's almost four months before she returns from her 140-mile round-trip journey with nourishment for her newly born chick, which she has never seen. Yes, the chick hatched while the male had the egg nestled beneath his body. Now begins the slow, awkward relay for life the parents the sea to feed and bring food for their young. When the chicks finally swim for the first time, they are now young adults who must fend for themselves without the aid of their parents, who have now gone out to sea. The young will remain at sea for four years. In their fifth year they will begin their own long trek to their place of birth. And so the cycle contin-perform for survival, returning alternately to

At times this icy plane appears to be a desolate wasteland, yet is clearly an oasis of much of what represents the best of life, whether human kind or otherwise.

This is a must see movie-going experience for the entire family.

This 3-year-old terrier mix is a bundle of energy who needs an owner who can keep up with her active lifestyle. She was origiprevious nally returned by her owner because of housebreaking issues. Jane is said to be good with some dogs, but that she doesn't care for cats.

Fancy Pants

A 4-and-a-half-year-old white and gray domestic longhair needs a home again after being returned by her owner of four years due to allergies. Fancy needs to be the "alpha cat" or dominant pet in the home, which means her feline (or canine) friends need to be pretty laid back.

AEAR ADOPTION

Julie

Julie is a 1-year-old pointer mix who was adopted out to a family who said they didn't want to keep her because she needed "gobs of attention." This is one sweet honey who is a favorite of AEAR volunteers, and wants a family who will give her gobs of attention and understands that dogs want love and attention. Julie is spayed, up-to-date on her shots and housebroken. She would do great with a family with kids and a big back yard to romp in. A stay-at-home parent would be ideal for this people-loving pooch.

Millie is a 10-weekold female Tortoise kitten with a fun loving, outgoing personality. She loves cuddling up when she's sleepy and playing like crazy when she's awake. She is accustomed to dogs and other cats. She is up-to-date on her shots.

Q & A with Sandy

Dear Sandy:

My daughter adopted Moose, a 15-pound beagle look-alike from the Humane Society about six months ago. Moose has destructive puppy-like behavior; chewing on things like blankets or bedspreads, stealing laundry and running away with it, difficulty learning obedience commands, eating plants even though she has been scolded PET WISE 100 times and her housebreaking aear1@anet.com leaves a bit to be desired. She knows where she is supposed to go because she does it 95 percent of the time, but then out of nowhere she will squat on the couch. She is crated during the day because my daughter can't trust her by herself. My daughter does go home lunchtime to let her out and play a little, but then back in the crate. I'm hoping you can show us the right direction.—Abby

Dear Abby:

Your daughter needs to call a trainer who will come to her home, assess the situation and start her and Moose on a complete training program right away. It sounds like Moose is out of control and in need of strict discipline. Group classes would not benefit them because the problems occur at home. In addition, a trainer in a group class cannot devote one-on-one time with her or Moose. On top of that Moose is a beagle or at least part beagle. Beagles can be harder to train than some other breeds. They can be stubborn and willful. He has also had a rough start in life and carries some baggage. Tell her not to give up on him.

Sandy:

I had two cats, both 11, who were sisters/littermates who I've had since kittens. They were very affectionate toward each other. Just before Christmas, my tabby, Maybelline, the one that was more affectionate with me, died from kidney failure. I was too distraught to get a new cat right away. I wanted to wait and wanted to see how my other cat, Dottie, was going to be. She's shyer but actually has become more talkative and hangs around a little closer to me now rather than in her hammock. But I worry that she's lonely all day when I'm at work, and at 10 p.m. when her and Maybelline had their nightly "exercise" run around. I thought I wanted another female but maybe not a kitten, perhaps in the 3- to 6year-old range.

So I went to Orphans of the Storm and wandered around for a couple of hours. The staff said I shouldn't get a female as Dottie would get territorial and spray, but I've had numerous cats, never a male and really don't want one. The staff did suggest not getting a kitten as a kitten would be too much "action" for Dottie who is in late middle age and fairly sedate. Should I go for a male or female cat? I really do think Dottie needs some company but I rent my apartment and could not deal with a cat spraying, either Dottie or the new
